INTRODUCTION

William Prentice Cooper Jr. (1895-1969) was the forty-fourth governor of Tennessee. The Governor Prentice Cooper Papers (GP 44) represent an official record of Cooper's three administrations (1939-1945). The collection has been arranged into several different series in order to provide easier access to the vast amount of material. The series include: Accounts, Correspondence, General Assembly, Invitations, Personal Papers, Photographs, Printed Materials, Scrapbooks, Selective Service, Speeches and Subject Files. A detailed description of each appears in the scope and content note.

The Governor Prentice Cooper Papers came to the Tennessee State Library and Archives in 1997 as a gift of Mrs. Hortense Cooper, the widow of Governor Cooper. At the time of acquisition the collection was located in an attic room consisting of 43 file drawer boxes, 44 record carton boxes, 27 scrapbooks and other miscellaneous items.

The Governor Prentice Cooper Papers (GP 44) consist of 286 boxes containing approximately 140 cubic feet of material and 25 scrapbooks. There is also a component of audio/visual materials in the collection. Very few items were removed from the collection except routine duplicate items. State government publications were transferred to the State Library for cataloging.

The Governor Prentice Cooper Papers are a major addition to the holdings of the Tennessee State Library and Archives and enhance and complete the gubernatorial papers stretching back to the first territorial governor, William Blount. Until this important acquisition, Governor Cooper's papers were the only modern governor not represented in the Tennessee State Library and Archives.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

William Prentice Cooper Jr. (1895-1969)

William Prentice Cooper Jr. was born September 28, 1895, at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Shofner on the Duck River, five miles from Shelbyville, the son of William Prentice and Argentine Shofner Cooper. The family originally lived at Henderson, Kentucky, until 1904, when they moved to Shelbyville. Prentice Cooper first attended school at Butler's Creek, later attending Hannah's Private School in Shelbyville and later the James A. Tate School prior to attending the Webb Preparatory School, where he graduated in 1913. During his senior year at Webb, he was president of the Hamilton Debating Society.

In 1914-1915, he attended Vanderbilt University, where he was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity and was elected vice president of the freshman class. In 1916, he entered Princeton University, from which he graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree.

In 1917, he volunteered for service in World War I, enlisting as a private in the artillery. He later became a master gunner while serving in the heavy artillery at Fort Monroe, Virginia, and at the time of his discharge in January 1919, he was a second lieutenant. He entered the Harvard Law School in February 1919, and graduated from that institution with a law degree in 1921. In 1922, he began practicing law with his father in Shelbyville.

Cooper's first attempt at politics was winning election to the Tennessee House of Representatives from Bedford County in 1922. During that session of the legislature, he was active in securing the passage of uniform laws, the most important of which bore his name, being the Uniform Declaratory Judgments Act, which allowed courts to rule on ambiguous laws before injury was sustained.

In 1925, he was elected Attorney General of the Eighth Judicial Circuit. After his term expired, he practiced law in Shelbyville and Lewisburg, serving as city attorney in both municipalities. During this period, he organized the Duck River Electric Membership Cooperation, said at the time to be the largest farmer's cooperative in the United States.

In 1937, he was elected to the State Senate representing the counties of Bedford, Coffee and Moore. During his term as State Senator, he championed the freedom of the press, fiscal reform and was one of the 13 senators who opposed Governor Gordon Browning's County Unit Law. During the early 1930s, he was active in civic affairs, serving one year as president of the Shelbyville Lions Club and also a member of the Lewisburg Rotary Club. He was post-commander of the American Legion and state commander of the American Legion in 1931.

In 1938, Cooper was a candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket. The incumbent, Gordon Browning, met formidable opposition in State Senator Cooper. Although Cooper could not match Browning on the platform, he had the support of the powerful Crump machine in Memphis and the strong state organization of Senator Kenneth D. McKellar. Crump bought thousands of dollars of advertising space in newspapers across the state to portray Cooper as a man of dignity and refinement and Browning as a bigoted boor.

On election day Cooper defeated Browning by a majority of 76,000 votes. After the election, Cooper announced simply: "I have but one real idea for my administration as Governor, and that is honesty and efficiency in government." Cooper had only token opposition in 1940, and by defeating Judge Ridley Mitchell in 1942 with a substantial majority, he became the first governor since Isham G. Harris to serve three consecutive terms.

With a business-like and non-political tone, Cooper emphasized efficiency in government and concentrated on raising the state's economic standing. When Cooper entered office, the state debt was $123,598,000. During Cooper's first administration, he reduced it by $21,000,000, whereas all previous governors combined had only reduced it by $6,000,000. Cooper cut the state payroll by $322,000, tightened purchasing procedures, freed four of the eight remaining toll bridges, and raised taxes only on alcohol. Bond rates were the lowest in state history at less than two percent. Yet, despite this, government services increased. Aid to the aged and infirm grew by $1,500,000. Free textbooks were offered for the first time in the first three primary grades. General school appropriations were increased, inmates in state penitentiaries were segregated by offense, and more raids and arrests were made by the state police. Public health expenditures were also increased. Despite his complete lack of big business experience, Cooper had been handling his office more like a corporate executive than anything else. The Governor's favorite campaign slogan in 1940 and 1942 was "His record is his platform."

The majority of Cooper's administration was concerned with the state's mobilization for war. In anticipation of national events, Cooper on May 22, 1940, organized the State Defense Council, four months before President Roosevelt's proclamation of a national emergency. As wartime governor, his duties greatly increased when he had to appoint the personnel on Tennessee's 132 draft boards, as well as organize the registration of Tennesseans eligible for the draft, under which almost 900,000 citizens were registered for military service.

An outstanding wartime activity of the Cooper administration was the construction of 15 armories strategically located throughout the state, including one in his hometown of Shelbyville. Also, Tennessee organized the largest state guard in the United States to take the place of the National Guard mustered into national service. A billion dollars' worth of war industries was located in Tennessee, and large military bases were established such as the Naval Training School at Millington, the army base at Camp Forrest and Camp Campbell, and the Smyrna Air Base located at Smyrna, Tennessee.

Perhaps Cooper's most controversial fight during his term in office was the struggle to repeal the poll tax. The poll tax vexed would-be reformers and stifled change. In the 1930s and 1940s, the Tennessee Press Association led the fight to repeal the poll tax. Cooper had always supported the poll tax repeal in theory, but had allowed political considerations and personal enmity for several of its advocates to relax his efforts to secure passage for effective repeal legislation.

On January 20, 1941, Cooper introduced his poll tax repeal bill, the most controversial bill he ever introduced. But in that same year, the Shelby County delegation under the influence of Edward H. Crump successfully fought back the repeal legislation. In 1943, the General Assembly rescinded the tax, only to have their action declared unconstitutional by the Tennessee Supreme Court. Cooper, because of his ties to Crump, was always more of an obstacle to the poll tax reform than a proponent.

Cooper served as chairman of the Southern Governor's Conference for the years 1943 and 1944, and from 1939 had served as chairman of the Southern Governor's Freight Rate Committee. The fight vigorously waged by Cooper and the other Southern governors resulted in the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in May 1945, that removed the 39 percent discrimination against the shipment of Southern manufactured products.

During the war, Governor Cooper served as the National Chairman of the Victory Garden Advisory Committee. Cooper's Home Food Supply Program was adopted by 30 states as a model wartime food program. In 1944, 210,000 Tennessee farm families were members of the Home Food Supply Program, agreeing to produce three-fourths of the food consumed by the family.

After his final term as governor, Cooper was appointed Ambassador to Peru, serving from 1946 to 1948. Cooper's term as ambassador was relatively quiet. He counted among his accomplishments the repayment of long unpaid loans which Peru owed the United States. But Cooper was known as a blunt ambassador who entertained frugally, with his mother as official embassy hostess. After he left Lima, the Argentine newspaper, La Epoca accused him of being responsible for an unsuccessful rebellion at the Lima harbor in October 1948. The former ambassador denounced the charge as "a complete falsehood from beginning to end."

A long campaign to revise the state's outdated fundamental law finally led to the meeting of a limited constitutional convention in 1953. Cooper was elected chairman and Ben W. Hooper, another ex-governor, vice chairman. All eight amendments, including the abolishment of the poll tax and the increase of the governor's term from two to four years, were then approved by the voters in November of that year.

Rumors swept across the state in 1953 that Cooper would run for the United States Senate against Estes Kefauver or for governor against Frank Clement the following year. Although support was strong, he choose not to run for either office.

On April 25, 1950, Cooper married Hortense Powell, the daughter of Ferdinand and Margaret McGavock Hayes Powell. They were the parents of three children: William Prentice Cooper III, James H.S. Cooper and John N. Powell Cooper.

In retirement Cooper spent most of his time in private business, managing family property and practicing law in Shelbyville. He and Mrs. Cooper actively participated in state historical organizations, Lutheran church activities and civic affairs. Cooper died on May 18, 1969 at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota. He was buried in Jenkins Chapel Cemetery in Bedford County.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

William Prentice Cooper Jr. (1895-1969) was the forty-fourth governor (1939-1945) of Tennessee. The Governor Prentice Cooper Papers (1916-1975) represent an official record of Cooper's three administrations as governor. Totaling over 140 cubic feet and 25 scrapbooks, the Cooper papers have been arranged into twelve series: Accounts, Correspondence; General Assembly; Invitations; Itineraries; Personal Papers; Photographs; Printed Materials; Scrapbooks; Selective Service; Speeches; and Subject Files. In as far as possible, the processor followed the arrangement created by the Governor's office.

The accounts are general accounts, bills and receipts generated by the day to day operations of the Governor's office. The accounts represent only the years 1941 through 1943. A small portion of the accounts are Cooper's personal charges made when traveling throughout the United States.

Correspondence comprises almost one half of the collection. The general correspondence covers a wide range of subjects reflecting the concerns of Tennesseans and non-Tennesseans of this time period: requests for autographed photographs of the governor; requests for Tennessee flags; opinions regarding issues in state government, such as "anti-Sunday movies," and the poll tax; opposition to liquor; requests for pensions and public assistance; requests for favorite recipes of the Governor; requests for appreciation/congratulatory letters; protests of speeding tickets; requests for donations or seeking personal sponsorships; child support; and many other serious and not so serious concerns. Many famous politicos and celebrities corresponded with Governor Cooper, including: Cordell Hull, Merrill Moore, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Kate Smith, Joseph W. Byrns, Leopold Stokowski, Gene Tunney, Harry Warner, James A. Farley, Wendell Willkie, Harold L. Ickes, Henry Morgenthau, John J. Pershing, Eddie Rickenbacker and Alvin C. York. Researchers seeking information concerning the relationship of Cooper and "Boss" Crump will find little evidence in the general or subject correspondence.

Within the subject division of the correspondence may be found information concerning many of the issues faced by the Cooper administration. The original titles for the subject correspondence were created within the Governor's office. The processor arranged each subject correspondence file folder in chronological order. Some of the issues found in the subject correspondence includes: correspondence from state agencies; requests for extradition; proclamation requests; colonel applicants; judge appointments; abolition of the poll tax; letters of protests; prohibition; the Southern Governor's Conference; toll bridge abolishment; truck weight limits; the 1939 New York World's Fair; protests against lynching; class weight investigations; defense preparedness; racial tensions; education concerns; the Home Food Supply Program; the building of a tuberculosis hospital; armory building; and rationing and rationing boards. The subject correspondence files labeled by county includes letters from constituents, political appointments and favors, and the makeup of the political parties in the counties.

The General Assembly records are copies of legislation introduced during Cooper's administration. Included are lists and outlines of all the legislation introduced by the General Assembly. Notes in pencil on many of the bills document the Governor's support or opposition for the legislation. The invitations are fairly complete and represent the Governor's activities outside the executive office. There are no invitations after October 1944.

Cooper was pleased with his accomplishments as Governor, and published many brochures and pamphlets discussing his programs. Within the collection are publications discussing Cooper's building programs, financial policies, the Home Food Supply Program and defense preparedness. State documents were removed from the collection and catalogued in the State Library's holdings.

The mobilization for war became one of Cooper's crowning achievements, and the Selective Service System records reflect this work. Each county was responsible for the creation of a "local board," and the correspondence details the various appointments and resignations on the boards. Each appointment or resignation had to be approved by the governor. The boards of some counties were very political, while other county boards were small but efficient. The Selective Service System correspondence is arranged by county.

Governor Cooper made many public speeches during his six years in office. The majority of the speeches are dedicatory or patriotic in nature, although many detail the policies of the Cooper administration. There are a few campaign speeches and transcripts of speeches made by Cooper's opponents. The processor has arranged each speech in alphabetical order. Many of the folders include a copy of the speech along with provisions and notes made by the governor. Similar in nature to Roosevelt's "Fireside Chats," Cooper made a series of "radio talks" during his administration. A complete set of the radio talks are filed under the speeches.

The second largest portion of the collection are the subject files. Like the subject correspondence, the subject files correspond to the various activities of the administration. The subject files are arranged in alphabetical order, and may include some correspondence, handwritten notes, clippings, reports, audits, pamphlets, and other materials. Important topics include: the Alabama vs New York Central Railroad Company case files; comparative collected revenues; extradition applications; the Great Smoky Mountains National Park dedication; the Mitchell gubernatorial campaign of 1942; the debate over the poll tax; proclamations; the State Board of Education; the Tennessee Valley Authority hearings of 1939-1940; and the Home Food Supply Program.

The personal papers are comprised of Cooper's records before and after his terms of office. The earliest in the collection are several notebooks of college notes made while at Princeton. There are very few records of his law practice although there are several items concerning specific law cases. A large bulk of the personal papers are concerned with his work with the American Legion and other church related organizations. There are several files of general correspondence from his two years (1946-1948) as ambassador to Peru. A large section of the personal papers deal with his important role in the Tennessee Constitutional Convention in 1953. Of particular interest are the transcripts of the convention. There is no information in the collection concerning his legislative career.

Of special interest are the Cooper diaries. The diaries (1937-1944) may well form the most significant part of the collection. The diaries provide a look into the day-to-day life of a sitting governor, and may be more significant in constructing the history of the Cooper administration than is found in the public correspondence. The researcher seeking information concerning Cooper's relationship with Crump should consult the diaries. Similarly, the scrapbooks are composed of clippings, invitations and photographs, and provide a significant "press" portrait of the governor's administration. The scrapbooks are arranged chronologically. The scrapbooks represent the most thorough coverage of Cooper's three administrations.

The importance of the Governor Prentice Cooper papers is twofold. One, the collection completes and enhances the unbroken history of the Tennessee governor's office. Secondly, the papers provide a remarkable social, political and cultural history of Tennessee during the late 1930s and 1940s, a time of great change in the state and the country. The researcher seeking a history of the state during World War II, and the ways in which the state mobilized for the national emergency will find the collection to be of significant value.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE AUDIO/VIDEO MATERIALS

GP44, the Governor Prentice Cooper Papers, also contains a limited amount of audio/video materials, including phonograph albums with audiocassette copies and a 16mm campaign film. (See boxes 285 and 286.) Amongst the phonograph albums is a campaign speech given by Ridley Mitchell in 1942; an interview by Governor Cooper of Jesse Brown Storm; a recording made at the home of Mr. & Mrs. W.P. Cooper that includes comments by Dr. Lauren Cullum, P.D. Houston, Evelyn Gail, Mrs. Robert Jackson, Dudley Gail, Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. P.D. Houston, and Mr. and Mrs. W.P. Cooper; another recording of the Tennessee Executive Office Force which is very faint, but comments by Mr. and Mrs. W.P. Cooper can be heard; a CBS Radio series called "The Nation's Nightmare", which includes segments entitled "Traffic in Narcotics" and "Crime on the Waterfront"; and an interview of Prentice Cooper conducted by Dr. Joe Riggs in 1968. The 16mm film also includes VHS copies and was produced in the 1950s for a potential run for Governor again by Prentice Cooper, but an exact date of the film is not given.

The phonograph albums are in poor condition due to deterioration, and the cassette copies available are the best copies possible. The albums, except for the Ridley Mitchell speech, will be located at a separate location from the rest of the audio/video materials in Vault Collections, V-12, located at I-C-5v. The remainder of the audio/video materials in this collection are located at X-A-3v.
